DAUGHERTY PROBE MAY BE ABANDONED

APPEARS LIKELY AFTER REMOVAL BY PRESIDENT

Wheeler Committee Meets In Secret Session to De- cide on Future

New York, March 31.—Federal Judge E. P. Garvin today ordered a bench warrant issued for Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, and ordered bail totalling $30,000 forfeited when he failed to appear today to stand trial on indictments charging him with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law and removing liquor from bonded warehouses.

Counsel for Means asked for a continuance of the trial, explaining that Means was now under subpoena to testify before the senate committee in Washington investigating the attorney general's office.

Means was indicted last October with Elmer Jarnecke, his secretary.

Another indictment was returned recently against Means, Jarnecke and Colonel Thomas B. Felder, an attorney charging an attempt to bribe former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty.

Washington, March 31.—With its chief incentive lost through the removal of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, the senatorial investigation of the department of justice entered its fourth week today with prospects of an early abandonment.

The Wheeler committee met in secret session today to decide upon its future, and indications were that an agreement would be reached to end the public sessions after a number of important witnesses are examined. A majority of the committee favored an adjournment particularly if the president should appoint as the new attorney general a man of established reputation.

Such action would be prompted by a reluctance to embarrass the incoming cabinet officer and by a willingness to let him "clean house" at the department of justice in his own way.

The committee at the instance of Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, "prosecutor" was ready to continue the investigation for a while at least into four charges of corruption. These were:

- 1.—Alleged non prosecution of aircraft frauds in which $1,000,000 were paid out illegally to four great airplane concerns and approximately $1,000,000 wasted upon a program that failed to produce a single fighting plane for the American armies in France.
- 2.—The alleged nationwide whiskey ring "deals" in which it was charged that at least $200,000 found its way in bribes to persons close to the former attorney general.
- 3.—Alleged sale of pardons by friends of Daugherty and.
- 4.—Alleged official connivance in the illegal transportation of films of the Carpentier-Dempsey fight.

Three important witnesses will be heard by the committee even if the proceedings are abandoned at an early date. They will be Howard Mannington, close friend of Daugherty, who is now enroute home from France to take the witness stand, "Jap" Muma, a Cincinnati newspaper man involved in the Dempsey-Carpentier fight film deals, and Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent.

Washington, March 31.—Gaston B. Means, former Department of Justice agent and now principal witness in the senate's investigation of the department of justice today became the center of a lively row between the Wheeler-Brookhart investigating committee and Federal Judge Edwin L. Garvin, at New York.

In answer to the court's demand that Means be produced in New York for trial for alleged conspiracy to violate the Volstead act, Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, defied the judge to take Means away and declared that the detective would be placed in the custody of the sergeant at arms of the senate.

POINCARE ANNOUNCES HIS FOREIGN POLICIES WILL BE MAINTAINED

Paris, March 31.—Premier Raymond Poincare told the chamber of deputies today that the foreign policies of his previous government will be maintained by the new government which has just come into power.

"France," declared the premier, "has a keen desire to reach an agreement as soon as possible with her allies upon questions of reparations and security. We cannot withdraw our troops except in proportion to payments by Germany."

"We will accept neither a dictatorship by the proletariat nor by any single man."

Premier Poincare read a long statement setting forth the policy and program of his new cabinet. The same communication was read in the senate by Minister of Justice Dupuy.

"This cabinet was formed in a spirit of Republican union and nation accord to apply fiscal laws, realize economies and continue the work of reconstruction, settling the reparations problem and obtaining peace," continued the premier.

"This cabinet demands that you do not incur any expenses above those covered by the normal receipts."

"Cost what it may we will not introduce German inflation into our finances. If we have debtors we also have creditors. A mutual settlement is desired in this situation; it already commands our attention."

"Despite anything said abroad France never since the Versailles treaty, was signed, has had any selfish inspirations nor ridiculous imperialist aims such as were attributed to her."

"We cannot exchange positive pledges for uncertain promises but we have a firm hope that after the international experts make their report to the reparations commission general and rapid liquidation of reparations will become possible."

INDICTMENT OF SINCLAIR WILL CAUSE ARREST

Oil Man Will Give Self Up—Bail Is Ar- ranged.

Washington, March 31.—An indictment for contempt for defying the authority of the United States senate and refusing to testify in the naval oil scandal investigation was returned today by the federal grand jury against Harry F. Sinclair, holder of Teapot Dome lease.

Immediately afterwards, Sinclair was ordered arrested. His attorneys, headed by Martin W. Littleton, have notified the government's special oil counsel, Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, that Sinclair will not try to evade arrest but will give himself up voluntarily to the authorities.

It is understood an agreement has been reached to permit Sinclair's immediate release on bail, pending the outcome of the contempt trial in the courts here.

Action against Sinclair today will be the start of a long drawn out legal battle that may not end until it reaches the supreme court of the United States. Sinclair and his counsel are prepared to spend vast sums of money, if necessary to fight the case.

They feel that the principles involved in the case are far-reaching and do not concern alone their client, but any person, who may be called before congressional committees for examination and investigation. Their fight will center around the power and authority of congress to demand witnesses to reveal private business and financial affairs.

Government counsel are as fully prepared as Sinclair's legal staff for the battle. Roberts and Pomerene have been working day and night preparing the prosecution. Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, the committee's prosecutor, may be summoned to act in an advisory capacity to the government's counsel.

Another week of digging into political pasts is scheduled by the oil committee. The hearings will start with a bang tomorrow when William Boyce Thompson, former chairman of the finance committee of the Republican national committee has been summoned.

LOWLANDS INUNDED

Marion, O. March 31.—All the lowlands in the county are inundated following the excessive rains, but no material damage has been reported. The Big Scioto river near Prospect overflowed the road and threatened to flood the tracks of the Columbus, Delaware and Marion Railway Company.

HARVEY'S DEMOCRATIC SLATE FOR 1924 CREATES MUCH INTEREST

Washington, March 31.—Colonel George Harvey's Democratic slate for 1924—Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, for president, and Governor George S. Silzer, of New Jersey, for vice president—created widespread interest in political circles in the capital today.

Colonel Harvey as a slate picker enjoys a considerable reputation. He was the original Wilson man and he had a good bit to do with the nomination of Warren G. Harding. It was in his room in the Blackstone hotel at Chicago three years ago that Harding's nomination was agreed upon.

Incidentally, both Republicans and Democrats were speculating today as to whether Colonel Harvey has turned Democratic again, after some years as a Republican. The colonel was one of the late President Harding's closest advisers and had Mr. Harding lived, it had been expected that Colonel Harvey would do much of the directing of the Republican campaign of 1924.

His relationship with President Coolidge, however, is not so close. Since he retired as ambassador to Great Britain, Colonel Harvey has been at the White House but once and there have been vague and indefinite rumors that he did not strongly favor the candidacy of Mr. Coolidge.

Colonel Harvey's selection of Senator Robinson as the "best man" for the Democrats could put forward this year, struck a responsive chord in the breasts of many of Robinson's friends today.

These friends, either with, or without the senator's approval, have been working quietly for sometime toward the selection of Robinson as a "compromise" at New York next June. His candidacy has been discussed in many quiet meetings in Washington during the last few months—particularly since the lustre of the McAdoo candidacy was somewhat dimmed by the widespread publicity he received as an attorney for E. L. Doheny.

Robinson's friends are proceeding on the theory that neither McAdoo, Underwood, Smith or Ralston can be nominated at New York. They foresee a long deadlock there which will make San Francisco and its 44 ballots seem a short and snappy session my comparison. They believed that Underwood and McAdoo will kill each other off, as did Wood and Lowden at the Chicago convention at Chicago; that Ralston will not be nominated because his age is against him; and that Smith cannot be nominated because of his "wetness" and the fact he is a Roman Catholic.

To whom then, they are asking, are the weary delegates to turn and they answer their own question by pointing to Robinson's qualifications—his record as a Democratic leader of the senate, his able handling of the convention four years ago as permanent chairman, his "progressive-ism" and finally and most significantly to the fact that, like Harding at Chicago, no Underwood people are bitterly against the McAdoo force and vice versa, but there is no bitter feeling against Robinson anywhere. On the contrary, they assert, there is no Democrat of presidential caliber who could come nearer commanding a united Democratic party.

Robinson has been an aggressive leader of the senate Democrats. He has whipped the quarrelling factions together, there in such a way as to enable the party to put forth a united front in almost every legislative test. He is 52 years old, a lawyer by profession and has been in public life almost continually for twenty years as congressman, governor of his state and Senator.

His friends believe he is the "ideal compromise" and are diligently working toward that end.

MOTHER-IN-LAW OF C. F.

KETTERING DIES MONDAY

Ashland, O. March 31.—Mrs. Minerva Williams, 73, mother-in-law of Charles F. Kettering, died at her home here this morning following a six weeks' illness. The funeral will be held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

MELLON PLAN FOR TAX REDUCTION TO COME UP THIS WEEK

Washington, March 31.—The Mellon plan of tax reduction will be reported to the senate late this week for final consideration, it was announced this afternoon by Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, chairman of the senate finance committee which has considered the bill for three weeks.

The measure as reported to the senate will be based on the tax rates advocated by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and will differ widely from the bill passed by the house.

The committee made rapid strides today in consideration of new rates. Agreements were reached placing taxes on both manufacture and sale of tobacco and cigarettes. A rate of two cents per 100 was placed on sales of produce on exchanges an increase of one cent over the house rate. The committee also restored a tax on promissory notes estimated to yield $2,150,000 a year.

The house rates on theater taxes also were approved. The tax was one cent on every ten cents spent for amusement admissions with an exemption on admissions up to 50 cents.

The committee also considered and readopted an earlier action in placing a limit of $10,000 maximum on the amount of earned income coming within the 25 per cent income tax bracket.

MEETS DEATH IN ATOMOBILE CRASH— WOMAN IS HELD

Akron, Ohio, March 31.—Walter Leslie, 30, whose wife is believed to be a resident of Canton, died shortly after 1 o'clock this morning as rescuers lifted a heavy automobile roadster, which was plunging him to the ground on the state road in Northampton. A woman, calling herself Peggy Morris, who was riding with Leslie and was also held down by the car was not injured.

According to one of the rescuers, Leslie, well known in local sporting circles, appeared to be breathing but died before he could be carried to an automobile.

The woman told conflicting stories and called herself by various names, according to one of the rescuers who said that as he drove past the spot his attention was attracted by the continuous sounding of the klaxon on the overturned car, the woman being able to operate the button.

Leslie and the woman resided at the Windsor Hotel here. Leslie's body was brought to Akron and the woman was locked up by Sheriff Weaver, who is investigating the wreck. She is held as a witness.

DR. P. A. BAKER OF WESTERVILLE DIES SUNDAY EVENING

Columbus, O. March 31.—Pending action to be taken by officials of the Anti Saloon League of America, funeral arrangements for the late Rev. Dr. Purley Albert Baker, 65, Westerville, whose death occurred Sunday night, are being postponed, it was stated today. Death of Dr. Baker, who recently resigned after serving twenty years as general superintendent of the league was due to a complication of diseases from which he suffered several months.

Rev. Dr. Baker was associated with the Anti Saloon League and in 1896 was appointed superintendent of the Cleveland district. He became state superintendent of Ohio the next year.

In 1903 Rev. Dr. Baker was elected general superintendent of the league and was re-elected biennially ever since. Upon the formation of the World League Against Alcoholism in 1919, he was made one of the vice presidents of the organization.

WOLVES PURSUE SKI RUNNERS IN SNOW

Colmar, Alsace, March 31.—A company of ski runners on the Vosges Mountains were pursued recently by a pack of wolves.

The men coasted down a mountain side and managed to find shelter in a cabin, which the wolves surrounded. A dog which was with the ski runners was killed by the wolves and the animals finally abandoned their man hunt. Only the deep snow, which made going difficult for the wolves, and was favorable to the men on skis, enabled the latter to escape.

EASTERN STATES SUFFER FROM HIGH WATER; OHIO AND PENNSYLVANIA HIT

Six Dead as Result of Overflowing of Potomac River Big Property Loss In Pittsburgh—Ohio Reports Damage.

Columbus, Ohio, March 31.—Rivers in the Ohio Valley were virtually free today from the dangers of flood which caused much consternation over the week end. Weather observers attributed the improved situation to the sudden drop in temperature and cessation of rain.

With fair weather promised for the next few days in this vicinity observers said there appeared to be little danger of further rises soon. Waters in streams near Columbus were receding slowly today with the mercury hovering in the vicinity of the freezing point.

Coshocton, Ohio, March 31.—Swept from the flooded road between Coshocton and Roscoe, 11 year old Chester Wilde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilde, Coshocton, was drowned Sunday evening in the Tuscarawas river.

The boy attempted to ride a bicycle through a foot of water sweeping over the road. He was carried several hundred feet downstream where his lifeless body was recovered.

Harvey Davis made a heroic effort to reach the boy.

Although still out of their banks this morning, the Tuscarawas and Walhonding rivers were receding rapidly. The high waters reached their crest—12 feet, 6 inches—Sunday afternoon.

East Liverpool, Ohio, March 31.—A flood crest of 38.7 feet was reached in the Ohio river here early today. The river is now receding at the rate of one tenth of a foot an hour.

Five hundred employees of five river front potteries, the first floors of which were covered with water when the river overflowed its banks, are idle.

Fifty families in East Liverpool and Wellsville, O., Smiths Ferry, Pa., and Congo and Moscow, W. Va., were forced to vacate or move to the second floors of their homes by the inundation of the lowlands.

Interurban traction service east and west of East Liverpool is suspended.

Newark, Ohio, March 31.—The flood waters have receded to their respective river beds in the four streams through this city, and there remains only the debris and wreckage which has entailed a loss of about $50,000. Following the cessation of rainfall Saturday evening the mercury fell from 75 to 33 degrees above zero in twenty-four hours.

The four victims of the Baltimore and Ohio flood wreck Saturday will be buried tomorrow.

Steubenville, O. March 31.—After a precipitous rise, the Ohio River this morning began to recede, leaving in its wake heavy damage. The high water mark registered early today was the highest in eleven years.

Many of the largest industries of this district were forced to suspend operations late Sunday when the water flowed into the plants. Fully 6,000 men are idle today as the La-Belle Iron Works, Weirton Steel Company, Carnegie Steel Company and other big plants lie idle.

Traction and train service has been crippled almost to a point where it is impossible to get in or out of the city only to nearby points. Many were forced from their homes in Follansbee, Mingo, Empire, Brilliant and Wellsville.

Huge damage to the Ohio-Pennsylvania Power plant near Toronto, Ohio, is reported.

FATALLY SHOT

St. Louis, Mo., March 31.—Gerard B. Cleary, 37, head of the Guarantee Service Company, was almost instantly killed here, when shot through the abdomen, while attempting to stop a fight in a soft drink parlor.

Considerable mystery surrounds the shooting, and police are holding five eye witnesses for the coroner's inquest. Cleary was formally a St. Louis police officer.

Washington, March 31.—Six dead today was the toll of the flood of the Potomac River, western Maryland and parts of Virginia and West Virginia. The heaviest loss of life was at Kitzmiller, Md., where an entire family of five was swept into the turbulent waters when a tree to which they were clinging for safety was uprooted. Fifteen homes were torn away by the rushing river sweeping through the town.

J. Borden Duryea of Cherrydale, Va., was drowned while trying to save a boat which had become loose from its moorings.

Hundreds of small craft were destroyed and damaged as the Potomac overflowed its banks in Washington, the river reached the highest point here since 1902, the weather bureau reported.

Hagerstown, Md., March 29.—Hundreds of thousands of dollars damage was suffered at Hancock today from the ravages of the worst flood that has hit this section of the country since 1898. Railroad bridges have been washed away by the 14 foot wall of water that inundated the town, telegraphic communication completely demolished and the greater part of the business section of the town lays under from three to seven feet of water.

It was necessary to shut down the water system last night, due to the fast rising waters. Last night Hancock housed hundreds of tourists who were driven to that city for safety by the fast rising waters of the Potomac River.

At Kitzmiller a family of five were drowned. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Beeman, their two children and David Beeman, grandfather of the children. The bodies of the children have been recovered.

Wheeling, W. Va., Mar. 31.—As snow sifted spittingly down over the Ohio Valley today, the section was in the midst of its most serious flood in ten years. At 9 o'clock this morning, the river here was practically at a stand with forty-one feet, six inches, at the wharf, or almost six feet over flood stage. Cellars throughout the whole business district were flooded, the major portion of the island and south side were under water, street car service was almost at a standstill and railroad traffic interrupted. Boats were the means of communication in many sections of the city. All valley steel mills were idle today, as a result of the invasion of high water, and thousands of people were unemployed.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 31.—With flood waters of the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers slowly receding at the rate of five inches an hour, the Pittsburgh industrial section today counted a loss of approximately $1,500,000 from the worst flood since 1907.

No loss of life was reported in this district since Saturday when two parents were swept away in an effort to rescue their children. The children were later rescued by a railroad.

The weather bureau reported a 25 foot river stage this morning. The crest of the flood was reached Sunday afternoon when 29.2 stage was reported.

Hundreds of families were driven from their homes and several narrow escapes from death were reported. Street cars were re-routed during the high water stage and railroad transportation was demoralized. The mills along the river banks suffered damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. Three thousand men were thrown out of work in McKeesport mills and similar layoffs were made at other river points.

DYNAMITE NEARLY WRECKS OHIO TOWN

New Lexington, Ohio, March 31.—In an attempt to go one better than the Ku Klux Klan, the Flaming Circle, anti-Klan organization is charged with having almost wrecked the main street business section of Shawnee, Perry County, late Saturday night.

It is alleged the circle set off nearly a ton of dynamite on a hill overlooking Shawnee, damaging a score of business places and 50 residences. Stocks were knocked down in stores, clocks and dishes knocked off racks in homes and windows broken by the hundreds.

Large plate glass windows were destroyed in the Shawnee Bank, K. of P. Hall, Red Man's Hall, Frank Peterson store, Bell Telephone Company, Reiske Bakery, George Peacock store, Z. and W. R. R. Depot, Gibbon's residence and many others. The explosion was felt for miles in all directions.

County officials were called to Shawnee early Sunday to make an investigation. No one was injured. The damage is estimated at about $10,000.

EDUCATORS WANT BUILDING PLANS STANDARDIZED

H. C. Aultman, county school superintendent, was re-elected executive committee member of the Western Ohio Superintendents' Round Table at the final session of the organization Saturday morning at the Phillips Hotel.

Claude E. Bruner, Lebanon, was elected president of the organization. Other officers elected were H. A. Hartman, Sidney, Ohio, executive committee chairman, and O. H. Bennett, Cincinnati, secretary and member of the executive committee.

Horace Ankney, Beavercreek Twp., took an active part in the passage of the architectural resolution at the meeting. The superintendents adopted the resolution asking the state to prepare standard plans and specifications for school buildings of various sizes, that will be adaptable to the needs and finances of the communities for which new buildings are needed.

The resolution read: "Be it resolved that it is the sense of the Western Ohio Superintendents' Round Table that the State Department of Education should prepare standard building plans that could be used by the rural and village boards of education in the construction of school buildings." The plans should cover buildings of various sizes, ranging from one room to several rooms including a gymnasium and auditorium, according to the committee members of which included D. H. Barnes, Xenia, A. A. Maysilles, Dayton, and W. S. Guilder, Oxford.

Passage of the resolution followed a heated discussion in which alleged methods of architects to increase building costs beyond appropriated funds were denounced. Mr. Ankney, who talked in favor of the resolution was for a number of years a member of the board of education in Beavercreek Township, and was instrumental in securing the first rural supervision in the state. He has since, after retiring for several years, taken a prominent part in school gatherings and board of education meetings, both in this and adjoining counties.

Other speakers on the architectural subject included: D. H. Barnes, of Xenia; A. A. Maysilles, Dayton; W. R. Heistand, Columbus; H. J. Anthony, Coldwater; L. C. Dick, London and W. S. Guilder of Oxford.

The boards of education were urged to insist that architects remain within the bond issues with their building estimates. Many cases were recited in which architects were declared responsible for the construction of school buildings at costs far in excess of the money appropriated, to the detriment of the educational facilities. The consensus of opinion was that the accumulation of debt is to be stopped, the first offensive to be war against the method usually employed on constructing new buildings.

Health
Father of Physical Culture

Speaking of hair culture the simplest procedure for a shampoo is as follows: Wet the hair with only a little water, and apply the cleansing agent. Rub well into the scalp and from time to time add more water to make a good lather. Part the hair to expose the scalp and rub well with the finger tips. Go over the entire scalp in this way and then rinse with several waters, using cold water for the last rinsing. Dry carefully with towels, or, in warm weather by exposure to the fresh air and sunshine.

The best way to dry long hair without tangling is to take up strands and rub them from the roots down between the towel covered hands. Move the hands down gradually to the ends of the hair, drawing the hair out to its full length. Needless to say the hair should always be thoroughly dry before it is dressed or braided after a shampoo.

Once or twice a week, the scalp should be given a dry cleaning with a soft cloth. Part the hair and with a bit of cheesecloth or old muslin that is wound round the finger tips, rub the part briskly and vigorously. Properly done the entire scalp can be gone over in this way and made clean and glowing without tangling the hair in the least. The rubbing loosens and removes dandruff and dust, and the friction draws the blood to the surface encouraging circulation.

This dry cleaning is not to be confused with the dry shampoo which I consider a most harmful practice. In the dry shampoo—but a description of the process will be its own condemnation. Corn-meal, orris root, or a specially prepared powder is sprinkled and rubbed into the hair and then brushed out again. You may get most of it out, but it is the little that remains that works the havoc. Mingling with the perspiration and the scales the skin is naturally shedding all the time, it forms a deposit that coats the scalp, choking up the pores, and interfering with its action. The natural oil which is so necessary to the health and beauty of the hair is imprisoned, as it were, in the glands which consequently become distended and further hamper the nutrition of the hair.

WHITTINGTON-COFFETT WEDDING AT COUNTRY HOME

A beautiful ceremony was performed at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whittington, on the Stone road, Saturday evening at eight o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Elsie Louise Whittington, was united in marriage to Mr. Foy Coffett, of Spring Valley.

The service was solemnized in the presence of fifty guests, including the members of Alpha Theta Chapter, Delta Theta Tau Sorority, of which the bride is a member. Pink and white roses were used in profusion about the rooms of the Whittington home, and in the parlor, where the ceremony took place, an improvised altar was arranged by the use of palms and ferns.

Mrs. Russell Halstead, cousin of the bride, played "O Promise Me" blending into the wedding march from Lohengrin. Little Frances Whittington, sister of the bride sang prettily, "I Love You Truly" accompanied by Mrs. Halstead.

The maid of honor, Miss Dorothy Hickman, of Xenia, and the best man, Mr. Raymond Whittington, the bride's brother, preceded the bride and bridegroom, and came down the open stairway, into the guest circle. The bride party took their places before the officiating clergyman, the Rev. C. N. Smith, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of New Jasper.

The bride's gown was fashioned of white Canton crepe, along simple becoming lines. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Miss Hickman wore blue taffeta and carried Opheleia roses. The single ring ceremony was performed.

A refreshment course was served the guests, after the service. Mr. and Mrs. Coffett left Saturday night for Indiana, where they will spend their honeymoon. Mrs. Coffett wore away a suit of navy blue, with a black and white hat, with black footwear. Mr. and Mrs. Coffett will reside in this city.

Mrs. Coffett is a graduate of Central High School, Xenia, with the class of 1919. She has been substitute music instructor in Greene County schools recently.

Styles BY LENORE

A real tomboy dress, this is—suspender's everything. Carmeen is the material, in navy blue, aided and abetted by printed crepe de chine, white with cherry colored stripes and tiny little row-gays in checkerboard arrangement.

A perfectly straight foundation is the plan of the frock, and the two narrow straps on each shoulder are adjusted with small shiny buckles. There are also buckles on the straps which decorate the pockets. But you must imagine that these straps are supposed to hold the pockets sealed, for otherwise there would be no true reason for having buckles at that point. And to use a buckle or a button where it does not actually serve a purpose—or pretends to—is to break one of those laws of good taste in dress design referred to the other day. Of course the blouse is separate. It is made with slight shirring around the neck, which gives the blouse a softer look.

You have no doubt already anticipated the suggestion that this is a splendid way of giving reincarnation to an outworn dress.

MINSTRELS ARRIVE FOR PERFORMANCE

The George Smart Set Minstrels, arrived in Xenia by special car Sunday for their performance at the Xenia Opera House Monday evening.

The company is said to include some of the best colored entertainers in the country, combining as it does, the old Georgia Minstrels Company and the famous Smart Set musical revue troupe, retaining the best talent from each.

The performance will include an old-time minstrel circle for the opening part, with eight men, but there will be a chorus of girls, seldom seen in minstrelsy. There will be seven big-time vaudeville numbers in the olio and the last part is a screaming comedy, the scene of which is laid in an undertaking establishment.

Bubber Mack, "Pork Chops" Chapman, and a number of other stars, including Julia Davis, the Paramount record singer, head the company of talented colored artists that plays here through arrangements with the Amusement Company.

"HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE"

"We do not think we are asking of you more than a reasonable amount of good will when we refresh your mind of the fact that this paper brought to you the news of the most startling political world change, or event that has taken place in the last two years. The value of the medium sized city daily newspaper as a help in giving its patrons 'the news,' first is aptly illustrated by a recent event of international interest.

We are alluding to the fall of the French cabinet and the resignation of Premier Poincare, the most sensational world transaction that had taken place in two years—a most unlooked for event on the part of the whole world.

You got the very first news of it from this paper. We know one man who came to appreciate this, because he seemed to suddenly awake to the realization of the fall of the French cabinet and ask himself if it were so, and then seeking proof; looking at and all over this daily paper from a large city and finding no confirmation of the great news, he thought it could not be true.

But next day he found that it had been the small city daily paper that had first given him and thousands of others this practically, the most exciting world news, because he found it confirmed by the large city daily papers.

We are not trying to "throw a bouquet at ourselves"—we are only seeking to have you recognize that you very often get first the most important world news in this paper.

This does not mean that the metropolitan newspapers overlook the important news, but simply that the editors of city papers you receive are necessarily early ones and must be printed many hours before the home paper in order to reach a subscriber at the same time.

A full leased wire telegraph news report daily enable this paper to inform its readers on important world news with the least possible delay and often a day ahead of out-of-town papers.

CONCERNING LIARS—BRAZEN AND PRUDENT

After many weeks listening to witnesses before the Teapot Dome Investigating Committee, I think I can qualify as an expert on lying, not from personal experience but from long observation. I have heard many tales told, and a few of them were wholly true. I have heard petty employes try to save their jobs by untruths and oil millionaires try to save some scraps of their reputations by a whopper. I have heard stories of notes with signatures torn off which would not fool a child. I have heard public officials tell tales that the whole audience in the committee room laughed at because of their impossibilities. I have seen editors caught at such brazen-faced ones that I was forced to feel that members of my own profession were singularly unpracticed. And I have listened to girl clerks rattle off glib ones that seemed to show a fair degree of proficiency. But of really intelligent lying I heard none.—Clinton W. Gilbert in Public Ledger.

HOPING FOR THE BEST

If there were such a thing as real gratitude between nations, we might expect the path of true love to run smooth from now on between the United States and Mexico. Charles Beecher Warren had a large hand in carrying on the negotiations that resulted in the recognition by the United States of the Obregon government. Mr. Warren on Tuesday arrived in Mexico City as American Ambassador. Between these two incidents the United States government virtually made common cause with President Obregon against his domestic enemies. But Obregon leaves office in a short time and the next Mexican revolution may not be quite so much to the taste of the Washington government as this last one. Besides, there are always the semi-independent provincial chiefs, ready to stir bad blood between the two countries. Most important of all, the new Mexican economic system does not tally very well with our ideas of what it should be. It will not be all smooth sailing. But at least diplomatic relations are now normal; that is something.

American Chop Suey:

Put two tablespoons of butter into a frying pan and, when melted, add one large onion chopped and two green peppers, with out seeds, which have been cut up rather finely. Let cook over mild heat till nearly tender, then add one pound of hamburger steak, one cup of rice which has been cooked with one cup of spaghetti (previously) for 30 minutes, one can of tomato soup, and salt and pepper to season well. Let all simmer till the meat is done, then serve very hot.

English Muffin: Scald two cups of sweet milk then turn it into a bowl and cool to the tepid stage; add one teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of sugar and one cake of compressed yeast which has been previously dissolved in one-fourth cup of warm water. Also add two cups of ordinary bread flour and let stand till the batter is spongy. Then add one-fourth cup of melted butter, one beaten egg-white and enough extra flour to make a stiff batter. Now again let the dough stand, this time till double in bulk. Drop by spoonfuls into well-greased muffin pans (filling them two-thirds full) sprinkle tops with sugar, and bake in a moderate oven for about 25 minutes.

Pepper-Eggs on Toast: Remove seeds from three green sweet peppers and chop the peppers very fine, then measure by tablespoons. Cook four tablespoons of this minced, green pepper in two tablespoons of butter; add two tablespoons of rich grated cheese and one tablespoon of Worcester-sauce or tomato catsup. Now beat six eggs light, with one-third cup of cream added to them, and turn this egg-mixture onto the pepper-mixture. Stir constantly as it cooks, and when thickened well, serve on slices of buttered toast.

"Hot Milk Sponge Cake (Contributed by Mrs. M.): Mix in a bowl one cup of sugar, two well-beaten eggs, one teaspoon of vanilla extract, a which has been sifted with one teaspoon of salt, and one cup of flour spoon of baking powder. Now put into a saucepan one-half cup of sweet milk and place this on the range; add to it a piece of butter the size of a walnut, and when the milk is hot turn this liquid into the other ingredients in the bowl. Stir well, then bake in greased cup-cake pans for about 20 minutes in a hot oven (like pop-overs)."

THE OLD CRAYON PORTRAIT

The old crayon portrait of father, at last we have put it away; We have stored it high up in the attic, and stored it, I fancy, to stay. 'Tis not that we think less of father, or have ceased to remember his name, 'Tis true we have tired of that picture, and tired of that horrible frame. I remember the day that we bought it, I remember the man who appeared And earnestly pleaded with mother— I remember the cut of his beard, I remember the pictures he showed her; today I can hear him tell He could make one of father just like them—seven dollars and a half and she fell!

She loaned him the group we'd had taken with Dad in the center, and he Even there lacked the smile of good nature which I'd grown accustomed to see. But the man said he'd give him a twinkle; his forehead he'd slightly enlarge.

YOUR WORLD

In a very personal sense, you do not live in my world and I do not live in yours. Our worlds, touch, however, and communicate.

For each of us creates his own world—the one in which he chooses to live.

Landor says: "The poet must himself create the beings who are to enjoy his paradise." And so each of us must create the things of beauty, the love and interest that make up our individual worlds.

You go into another friend's home. It isn't the home that you would have, though you may love it and admire it. No two homes are alike. No two gardens are alike. Each is an expression of its owner's heart and soul.

We are all the time crossing each other's worlds, living a while in them, laughing, crying and working in them—but they are only atmospheres that tell us what to do with the world that is ours alone.

But unless a world is developed it does not amount to much.

Take the great territory of Alaska. When it was bought by President Johnson, I believe it was, people said that it was a wild and foolish buy. There are dozens of men in New York City alone now who could have bought it for the price that the United States paid and hardly felt it. But over the years as we have dug up the treasures that were hidden there, millions upon millions of precious minerals have been brought to light and to use in that great territory.

There are human beings who think that their world is not worth owning. They want somebody else's world—one that is developed and rich. But, somehow, no one seems able to interpret another world aright. The one who owns his own must make it great!

You have a world, my friend. It is yours as much as is the air you breathe. Look it over. Explore it. Dig deep into its secret chambers. Make yourself big and free and honest in it.

Just remember that God gives worlds away—men do not!

HIGH WATER CAUSES ANXIOUS PERIOD; DANGER IS PAST

After a period in which Miami Valley towns, not protected by the Miami Conservancy District, pictured a repetition of the 1923 floods, cessation of rainfall and a drop in temperature resulted in water in the Miami River and other streams receding from Sunday noon.

The water reached the high water mark of twelve feet Saturday night and remained until Sunday noon. The high water reported from Springfield, West Alexandria, Versailles and other towns in the valley also began receding. Dams of the conservancy district at Englewood, Germantown and Taylorsville met their first real test since their completion and afforded complete protection.

Continued cold weather with absence of rain, is expected to bring permanent relief from any flood dangers in the valley. The Little Miami River and Greene County creeks and streams were also swollen by the heavy rainfall of Friday night. Anderson's Fork and Caesar creek were out of their banks as usual, and the New Burlington Pike was blocked for a time Saturday by the highwater.

The channels of the twin Shawnee creeks in Xenia were ample to take care of the extra water, and there was no overflow in the city.

Greene Countians Who Have Achieved Distinction

(Editor's Note—This is number 35 of a series of articles concerning Greene County citizens and former citizens who have attained nationwide prominence in their chosen fields of endeavor. It is interesting to note that Greene County has furnished more than its share of people who have attained renown.)

Mrs. Grace Boteler Allen

Readers of women's magazines and Sunday School papers, are familiar with the delightful little stories of Mrs. Grace Boteler Allen, a versatile and prolific writer, and a native of Jamestown, where she lived for many years.

Mrs. Allen was born in Jamestown and received her education in the Jamestown schools, graduating from Jamestown High School. She later attended Wittenberg College, Springfield, Berea College and the University in Washington D. C.

Mrs. Allen is a niece of Mattie M. Boteler, novelist, and thus writing to her was partly hereditary. Her first story was published in The Lookout, a magazine published in Cincinnati and edited by Miss Boteler. While teaching and doing missionary work in the Kentucky Mountains, Mrs. Allen received much material for stories that later brought her letters from readers all over the world.

Both as a writer and as a public speaker, Mrs. Allen has championed the cause of temperance, winning herself much acclaim in this respect. Her stories have appeared in The Christian Herald, the Woman's Home Companion, Good House-keeping and almost every religious paper of note in the country. A tract, "How to Keep the Boys and Girls on the Farm," written by Mrs. Allen was circulated by the Ohio State Road Federation as election literature, 5,000 being sent to the Road Convention at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Allen was one of the first women members of a municipal council in Ohio, serving in Jamestown a few years ago. She spoke for the late President Harding during the first women's campaign and is a former Jamestown correspondent for the Gazette and the Republican. She has accomplished much as a lecturer in Sunday School Institute work and in Teachers' Training Schools.

The Religious Telescope now has two book-length manuscripts of Mrs. Allen, which it has been requested to publish in book form for Sunday School Libraries. It is a remarkable proof of Mrs. Allen's untiring energy that she has had more than 1,000 short stories published in various magazines and papers.

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Evil Shepherd By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

The man's simple way of telling his story, his speech, seemed all to add to the dramatic nature of his disclosure. Francis found himself sitting like a child who listens to a fairy story.

"And then?" he asked simply.

"I went off with the money," Walter continued, "and I had cruel bad luck. I put it into a pub. I was robbed a little. I drank a little, my wife wasn't any good. I lost it all, sir. I found myself destitute. I went back to Sir Timothy."

"Well?"

The man shifted his feet nervously. He seemed to have come to the difficult part of his story.

"Sir Timothy was as hard as nails," he said slowly. "He saw me. The moment I had finished, he rang the bell. 'Hedges,' he said to the manservant who came in, 'this man has come here to try and blackmail me. Throw him out. If he gives any trouble, send for the police. If he shows himself here again, send for the police.'"

"What happened then?"

"Well, I nearly blurted out the whole story," the man confessed, "and then I remembered that wouldn't do me any good, so I went away. I got a job at the Ritz, but I was took ill a few days afterward. I went to see a doctor. From him I got my death warrant, sir."

"Is it heart?"

"It's heart, sir," the man acknowledged. "The doctor told me I might snuff out at any moment. I can't live, anyway, for more than a year. I've got a little girl."

"Now just why have you come to see me?" Francis asked.

"For just this, sir," the man replied. "Here's my account of what happened," he went on, drawing some sheets of foolscap from his pocket. "It's written in my own hand and there are two witnesses to my signature—one a clergyman, sir, and the other a doctor, thinking it was a will or something. I had it in my mind to send that to Scotland Yard, and then I remembered that I hadn't a penny to leave my little girl. I began to wonder—think as meanly of me as you like, sir—how I could still make some money out of this. I happened to know that you were none too friendly disposed toward Sir Timothy. This confession of mine, if it wouldn't mean hanging, would mean imprisonment for the rest of his life. You could make a better bargain with him than me, sir. Do you want to hold him in your power? If so, you can have this confession, all signed and everything, for two hundred pounds, and as I live, sir, that two hundred pounds is to pay for my funeral, and the balance for my little girl."

Francis took the papers and glanced them through.

"Supposing I buy this document from you," he said, "what is its actual value? You could write out another confession, get that signed, and sell it to another of Sir Timothy's enemies, or you could still go to Scotland Yard yourself."

"I shouldn't do that, sir, I assure you," the man declared nervously, "not on my solemn oath. I want simply to be quit of the whole matter and have a little money for the child."

Francis considered for a moment.

"There is only one way I can see," he said, "to make this document worth the money to me. If you will sign a confession that any statement you have made as to the death of Mr. Hilditch is entirely imaginary, that you did not see Sir Timothy in the house that night, that you went to bed at your usual time and slept until you were awakened, and that you only made this charge for the purpose of extorting money—if you will sign a confession to that effect and give it me with these papers, I will pay you the two hundred pounds and I will never use the confession unless you repeat the charge."

"I'll do it, sir," the man assented.

Francis drew up a document, which his visitor read through and signed. Then he wrote out an open check.

"My servant shall take you to the bank in a taxi," he said. "They would scarcely pay you this unless you were identified. We understand one another?"

"Perfectly, sir!"

Francis rang the bell, gave his servant the necessary orders, and dismissed the two men. Half an hour later, already changed into flannels, he was on his way into the country.

REPORTS OF FLOOD LOSS EXAGGERATED

First reports of the Springfield flood, along Buck Creek, were considerably exaggerated. It was announced Monday, after the work of repairing the damage had been begun.

The home of only one family was damaged to any extent and Springfield charitable organizations cared for the few families that were in need.

The Westcott Motor company was flooded and after the factory was cleaned operations were resumed Monday. The damage of the plant was much lower than originally reported, it was declared by officials. Loss at the Ansted and Burke Company, was also small. The same was reported by other plant officials after checking their stocks and machinery Sunday.

Practically no damage was done to Snyder Park, and the golf links.

Columbus, O., March 31—Miss Mary Harriet, 35, whose back was broken Saturday when a limb blown from a tree in the statehouse yard, struck her, was declared by physicians today to have a slight chance for recovery.

SILVER COLLAR FOR WHITE HOUSE CAT.

When "Tiger," his pet cat, disappeared from the White House, President Calvin Coolidge had the story broadcast by radio, with the result that Ben C. Fink, an employee of the Navy Department, found "Tiger" a mile away and returned him. The President has ordered a silver collar to keep his pet from being lost again.

PRISONER TO BE DELIVERED BY AIR

Depending upon favorable weather, Audrey Stuck, late of the Eleventh Infantry, was scheduled to take his first airplane ride in the aerial patrol at Wilbur Wright field, Monday.

The flight was to be to Columbus, where Stuck is to be tried on charges of deserting. The prisoner was arrested in Dayton several days ago and held pending investigation.

This will be the second time sky patrol has been called into service between Fairfield and Fort Hayes.

TALK'S ON "CHALLENGE"

Dr. Rees Edgar Tulloss, president of Wittenberg College, Springfield, spoke on "The Challenge of Jesus" before students of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, at the vesper services, Sunday night.

He divided his subject into four challenges, the challenge of heart, mind, will and individual. He voiced his hope that someone will reinstate the teachings of Christ to suit modern needs.

The glass hats on exhibition, entirely made of spun glass, are wonderful to see. The famous steam engine with the Myers exhibition made a wonderful hit. It is all made of glass, and, running by steam, it clearly demonstrates the use of steam to run the engine from the time it leaves the boiler. This exhibition is located

GERMAN CHESS CHAMP IN LEAD. SIGNING OF WILLS BY RICKARD. MEANS DEMPSEY MAY BE BOOKED

New York, March 31.—With the first half of the chess masters tournament nearing completion, Dr. Emanuel Lasker of Germany, continued to lead the field today, followed by Alexander Alekhine, of Russia and Jose Capablanca of Cuba. The German, however, failed to score his expected victory in the eleventh round last night when he was forced to draw with Yates the Englishman, after fifty five moves, while Alekhine still faces the possibility of a distinct gain in points as the result of his adjourned match with Bogoljubow after 61 moves. In the other matches played, Maroczy defeated Janowski. Reti scored a victory over Tartakower and Marshall defeated Edward Lasker. Capablanca drew a bye and announced that he had accepted a draw with Marshall in their adjourned tenth round match.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
 New York, March 31.—The signing of Harry Wills to engage in a series of bouts under Rickard's auspices this summer, with Dempsey as the ultimate goal, means only one of two things, to wit: either Rickard has been given definite assurance that Wills and Dempsey may transact business in New Jersey, which we doubt, or the promoter is merely trying to embarrass Jim Coffroth by tying up all available contenders.

Rickard showed not the slightest interest in Wills until announcement came from the coast that Coffroth was about to negotiate with Dempsey for a Wills bout at Tia Juana. Barely more than twenty-four hours later, Rickard replied by signing Wills to meet any one of three men—Firpo, Spalla, or Romero-R.

By NICK FLATLEY
 Augusta, Ga., March 31.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb would be a perfectly contented manager if somebody would just assure him that Topper Rigney's back would hold out through a hard baseball campaign. With the little shortstop in shape, Tyrus would be able to sail forth with plenty of confidence to annex a pennant for Detroit.

Rigney has some sort of mysterious trouble kink that tangles him up sometimes when he's stretching for grounders. And the doctors can't just find it or define it. Rigney hasn't been himself this spring. Nevertheless the Tigers have a ball club, a mighty good one. The outfit with the regulars in shape has only one weakness—second base. Stan Haney and Rigney are fighting it out for that job and neither quite come up to the mark in a fielding way.

Pratt can make the quick throws smoothly enough but he can't scamper around very fast. Time is taking its toll out of his sturdy legs. Haney is awkward and not just fast enough. Both can hammer the apple hard, however.

Everywhere else, the Tigers are set to go. They have good pitchers and plenty of them. Danis, Johnson, Pillette, Holloway, Rip Collins, Stoner, Cole and Whitehill can furnish enough sharp shooting to carry any team to the heights.

The latter three are southpaws. These Tigers have the best hitting outfield in baseball, though Bob Veach has been sent along. Manush, Cobb and Heilman will wreck pitching more often than any trio on any other club, and they have Fothergill in reserve.

Lou Blue is the best first baseman in the league, Rigney physically fit has peers at short and Jones is a steady, game and dependable third sacker.

The catching department rates high. The Tigers will hit as hard as any in the business and except for second base, field just as well. The pitching is much better than average, and it would seem that a few early breaks would give Tyrus an opportunity to prove that he can steer a team as well as he can play the outfield.

RIGNEY'S INJURY MAY INJURE CHANCES OF COBB'S TYGERS

HAGEN PICKED TO TAKE OPEN GOLF TOURNEY

Pinehurst, N. C. March 31.—A field of golf professionals, worthy of the United States open championship started here today in the annual north and south open event, with Walter Hagen, last year's winner, a staunch favorite. Second choices were Joe Kirkwood, the man with a thousand shots, Gene Sarazen, rated as the leading American pro and MacDonald Smith, the gifted Californian. Other local contenders in the field of 98 were Arthur Havers, British open champion; James Ockenden, holder of the French title; Jack Hutchison, Jim Barnes and Johnny Farrell. It was the greatest field that had ever taken part in the north and south classic and with favorable weather prevailing, course records were expected to suffer.

Just before starting the first round today, Hagen and Sarazen announced that, directly following the American open championship at Detroit, they would sail for England to take part in the British open title event at Hoy Lake. It is expected to be a honeymoon trip for Sarazen this year, just as it was for Hagen in 1923.

BRITISH ROW ON OIL ECHOES U. S. SENATE INQUIRY

London, Mar. 31.—Announcement by the Labor Government of its intention to retain the Government's holdings in the Anglo-Persian Oil Company has precipitated a controversy echoing in intensity the U. S. Senate Committee's investigation of the Teapot Dome transactions—although the British situation is the direct antithesis of the American row.

The Government's decision to retain these holdings was reached after months of negotiations for their sale to private interests, and though announced by the Labor Government is understood to be the policy adopted by the preceding Conservative government of Stanley Baldwin and to have been severely confirmed by the MacDonald government.

The Burmah Oil Company has issued a stinging statement charging that the Government's decision is not in the national interests, and the controversy promises to run for weeks. The statement made by the Burmah Company seems to make it evident that, in seeking to purchase the governmental holdings in the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, there was a plan afoot to secure predominant British control of a new group consisting of Burmah, Shell and Royal-Dutch companies. This, it is contended, would have secured Great Britain control of important oil resources at all times and removed the dependence of the British Navy upon the oil fields of Central Asia.

Our store, like nearly all established concerns, must face some time or other a thorough changing around. After the death of W. C. Hutchison our store was somewhat disorganized and drifted away from H. & G. principals.

Today we are sailing under the same rules, principals and same courteous treatment that made our store the leader in this community for sixty years. If fair treatment, good merchandise, and honest values will keep us in the lead, our business will continue to grow through generations to come.

Stylish and Smart Shoes for Various Occasions

While slipper styles have always had a personality of their own, refusing to completely submerge their identity in the current vogue in costumes, they nevertheless condense this season to echo the strong vogue for tailored effects and costumes of simple silhouette.

Thus the new spring season sees, first of all, lasts of very beautiful modeling, as truly following the lines of the foot as the nipped-in tailleur follows the figure. Similarly, also, is the American toe preferred to the Parisian or French toe for its more accurate likeness to the natural lines. Lastly, are straight heels low, and curving heels preferred in the lower Spanish or Cuban styles.

Sandal effects, because of their revealing of line, are also particularly fashionable and many are the means by which the sandal effect is secured with still the maximum fitting quality of the completer models.

Straps serve this latter purpose besides forming the main vehicle for innovations and novelties. Cross straps, linked straps, straps curled and straps straight, but above all straps that hold in their treatment a distinctive and exclusive idea, are the distinguishing characteristic of the nicest spring styles.

By the courtesy of I. Miller our style investigator was permitted to view the entire presentation for spring and has selected five charming models for illustration here which show the more authentic effect for wear at certain times of the day.

A most attractive model which certainly invites a morning walk or shopping tour is the aristocratic cross strap effect with its curving tailored collar at the vamp. This model is preferred in patent leather which latter is, of course, an inevitably favorite leather at all

For more formal afternoon is the dainty slipper of black satin whose buttoned side loops are caught together with two decorated rings. We have no other slipper precisely like this anywhere and much of its charm is found in its exclusiveness.

Another model which will be seen at fashionable afternoon tea is the simple model whose front strap is so daintily tabbed on the vamp and looped over the buttoned cross strap. This model particularly will go with many of the newer costumes for it has the same freedom of line that is so popular nowadays.

For sports wear black and white is one of the outstanding fashions while of more novel effects are the slippers of white kidskin with trimmings of lizard leather. One of these latter in a two-strapped model is illustrated, the straps and collar being of lizard skin and a further insert of lizard skin at the heel and toe giving a smart contrast of true sports effect.

For evening wear is shown a slipper of silver brocade with a somewhat broad saddle band across the vamp artistically patterned.

More and more each season the smart woman chooses her slippers to conform to her gown. This harmony may be one of color, of motif or of line, but certainly should have some touch that gives an effect of agreement in the entire appearance. The spring footwear styles will be found to be of sufficient variety to permit of easy selection of such models, for they are certainly more ingenious in patterns, more beautiful in color and more varied in color tone than has been seen for many seasons past.

Ways That Make Fashion Sure Footed

Snake skin pipings on suede shoes achieve a novel trimming effect.

The craze for black and white in suits has brought out some good combinations in footwear. Black suede piped with white kid, and black kid with eyelets bound with white kid.

Evening slippers of white satin with pink flowers, hand painted over their surface were delightful accompaniments of an all white costume.

The medium low heel continues for general wear, but evening slippers sponsor only the French heel. They are sometimes of rhinestones. Heels of this sort can be purchased separately.

Flappers having been initiated into men's barber shops have invaded men's shoe shops. For the fashionable sport togs of the modern times seem to call for the flat shoe, and the real boy shoe she finds the best.

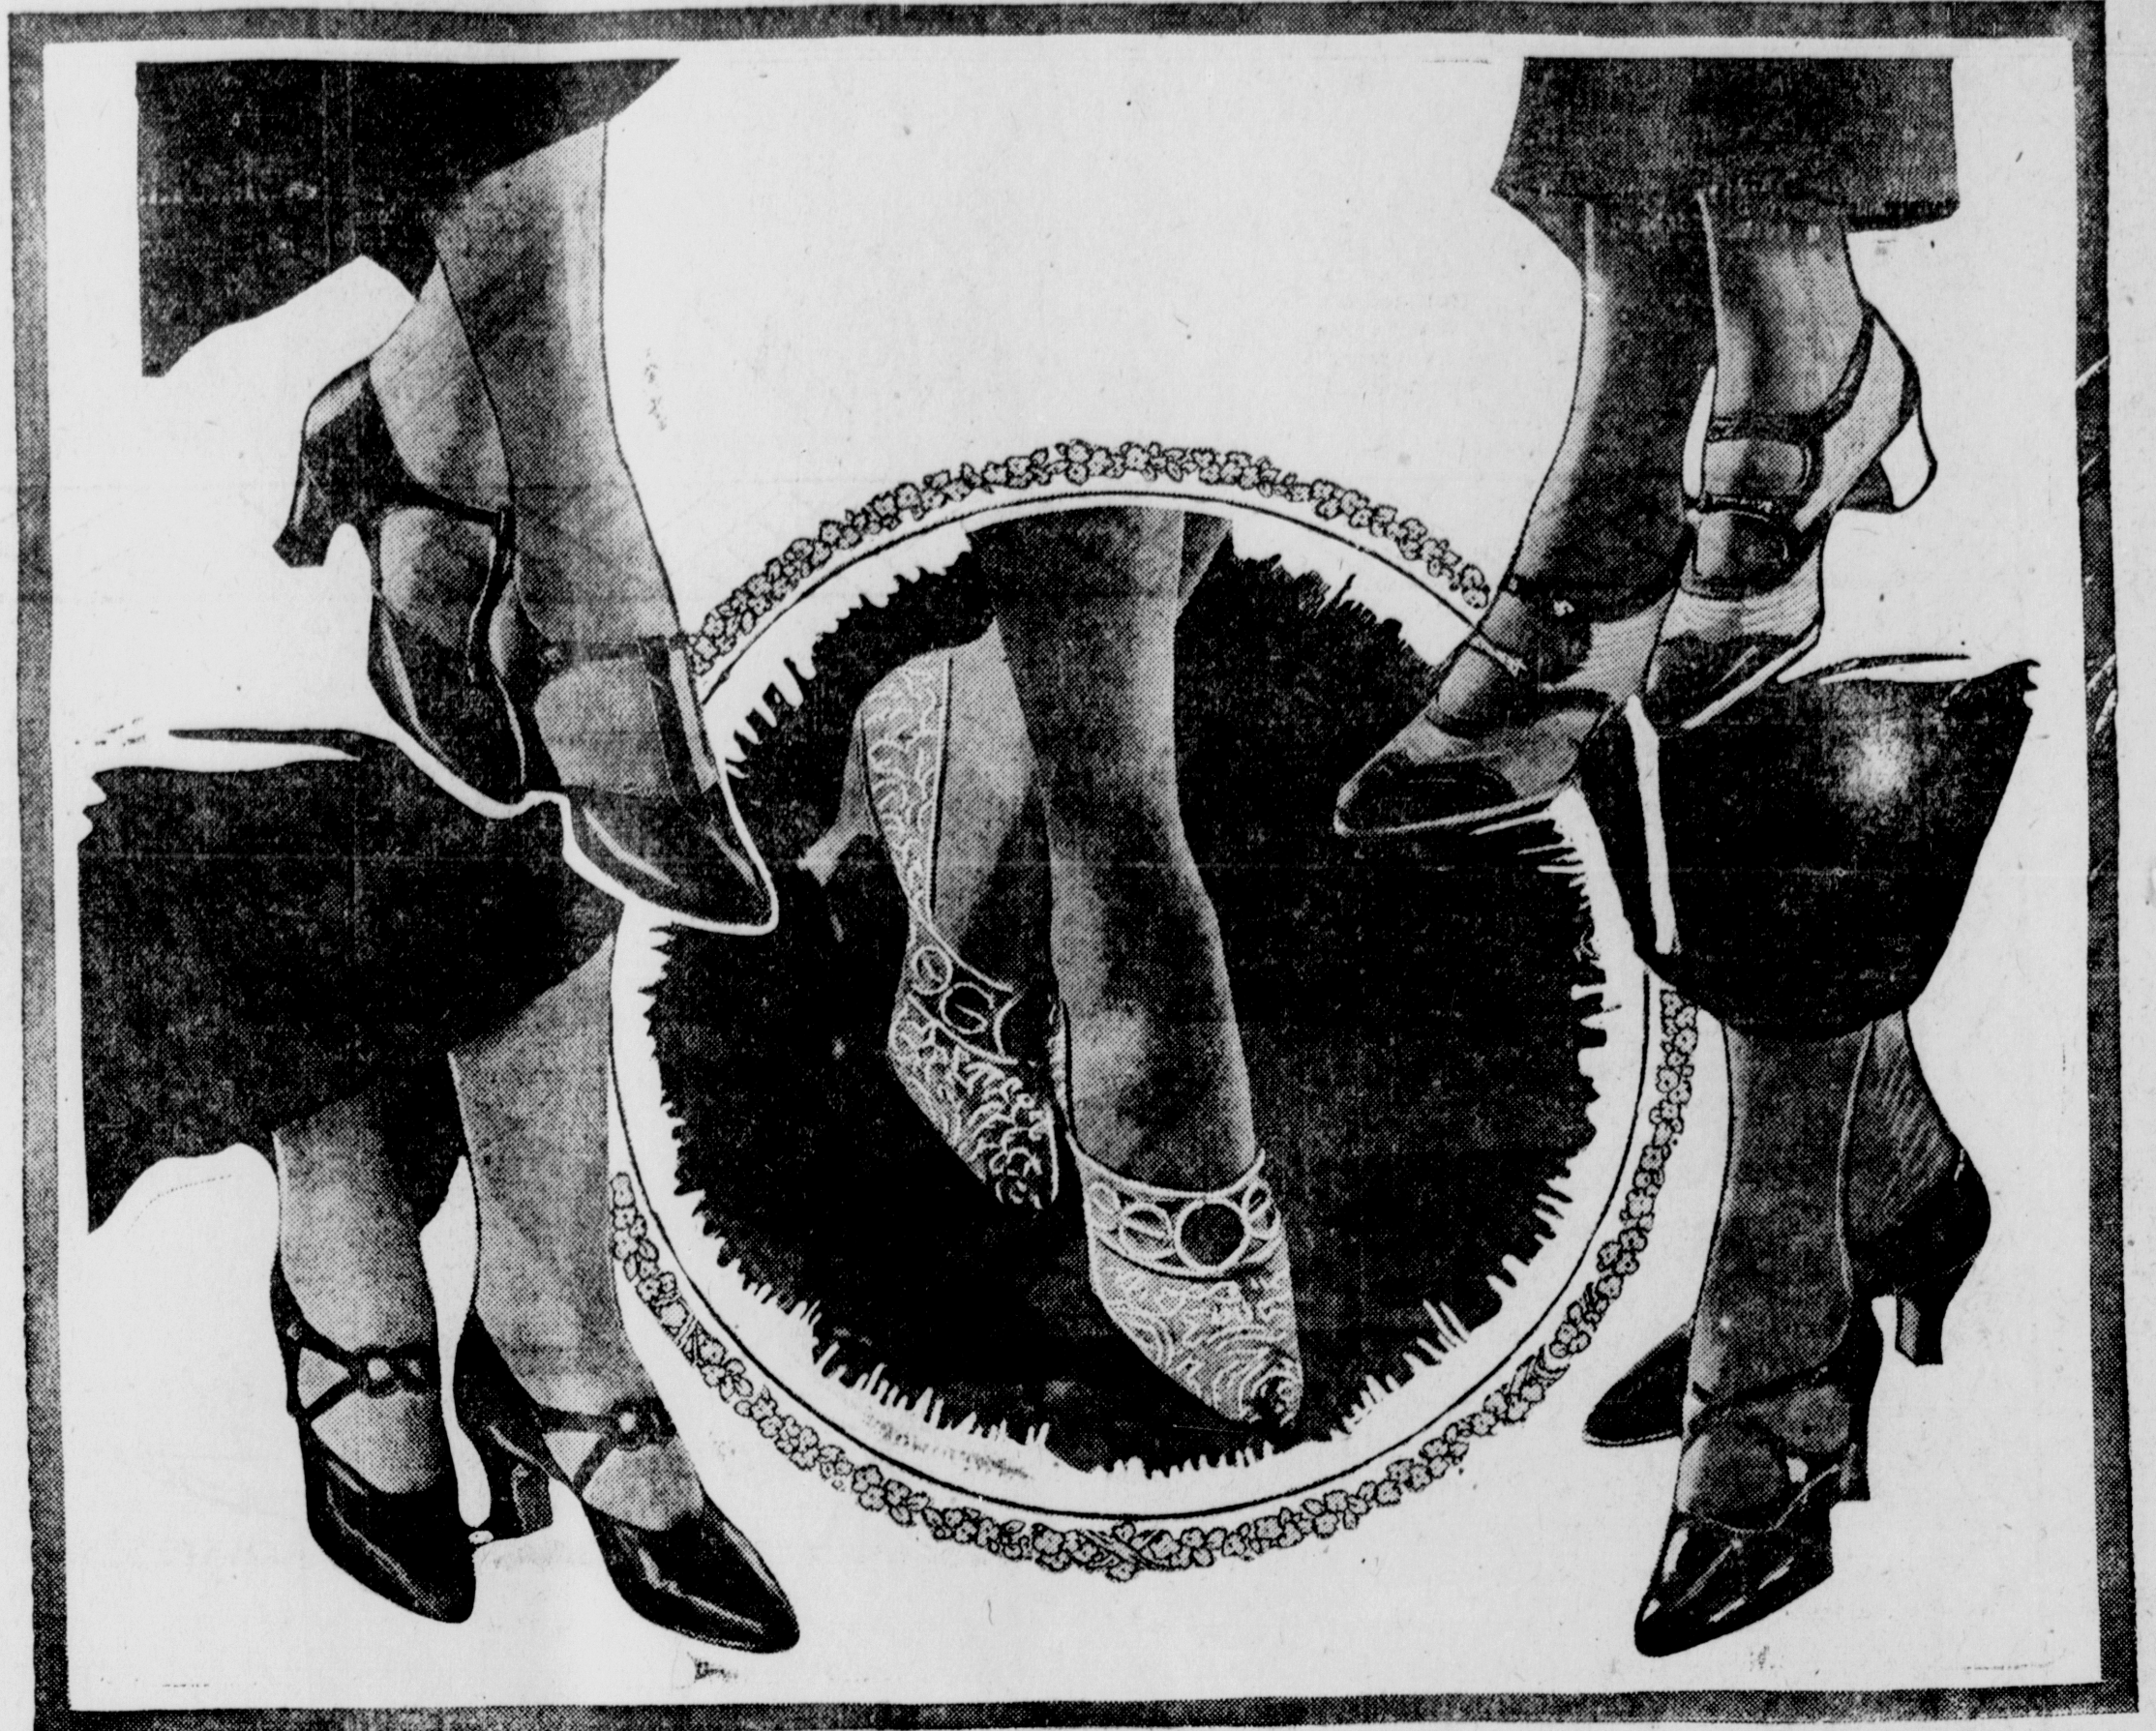

Rubber bathing shoes continue the most popular and are smartest when they match the caps in some gay combination of colors. The black bathing suit then is effectively enlivened.

Hand painted lizard skin is used for dainty evening and boudoir slippers. They feature a blending of colors applied with an air brush, which gives them versatile character adaptable to costumes of varied colors.

Nude stockings in their various tones and tints are the only smart thing. Black is entirely out, times in the year.

Some very smart hats, of the necessary minute dimensions, have gained a gay distinction by being made entirely of plaid silk, with a matching plaid scarf.

Spring Styles are Conservative, Yet Smart

What must women, every one attired like a separate flower, think of the average man's dress? The verdict is they endure it because they must. If men could only cut a more romantic figure, if perhaps they could be a trifle bit more spectacular, let us say, if they did not so hopelessly and so dreadfully resemble every other man, perhaps the divorce rate would not be quite so startling as it is. For, strange as it may seem, few women have lived who loved a man because he was a good citizen or was efficient in the office. But millions of women have loved men because they were extravagantly romantic, invincibly gallant and the possessors of a charm that was neither to be resisted nor denied. The buccaneers, the swashbucklers, the fighters, the wits, the daredevils, the gallants, the heroes and the dandies—these are the men who win and hold the love of women. It is also true that the best dressed men get and keep the best positions. Now the successful dandy must have brains and distinction to back up his vagaries. Dandyism is merely individuality in dress. It is the extravagant accentuation of a great truth which drives it home upon the consciousness.

But the present materialistic age is very remote in spirit to the cause of individuality in dress. In a Fifth Avenue crowd one may distinguish but four or five different styles of hats, and all in the shades of brown or grey, and almost every overcoat with a belt, and all in the same shades.

Of course, a man being of necessity a practical individual could never bring himself to make the matter of dress a main issue. They, like many women, do not want to think about it, or argue over it. But the men who take their clothes as seriously as they should, and as inconspicuously as they can, have a philosophy in regard to it. They never wear anything merely because it is smart, but only because it is smart and practical. It is their influence that has accomplished the return of the winged collar with a wide opening, for wear at all times of the day, morning, afternoon and evening. When it is worn in the morning, it is accompanied by a shirt with semi-starched rolled cuffs, a short black jacket either single or double breasted, and striped trousers, and either a bowler or soft grey felt hat. The semi-soft collars, with all manner of different cuts as to width between its points, the depth of them, and the height, are more than ever popular, especially with the young, altho men of all ages have adopted them. And they have good reason to, for the style of these collars have an immensely youthful influence. And the man of dignity finds that he loses none of this quality in wearing these collars which have been cut with so much snap and style to them, that they demand serious approbation.

These semi-soft collars are worn with plain-colored or striped or figured madras shirts as well as plain white linen ones. The man of affairs likes the plain white shirt better than anything else, and surely a man past 45 or 50 should never indulge in anything else.

The modish tie for morning wear is that type known as "The Prince of Wales," which is of soft but strong silk, whose small patterns and colorings are a distinct innovation. They are a four-in-hand style. The older man chooses a black or rich textured silk or satin stripe or figure for his four-in-hand, or a bow-tie of figured silk on plain black.

The man who is the standard of good dress and taste never allows his attire to suggest in any way the extreme. His clothes are cut so as to appear to be fitted though they are never tight. He would never sponsor a radical style, neither would he wear a commonplace thing. His clothes are cut according to the proportions of his figure rather than to any style dictates, and also they must be comfortable. That is why he wears wide trousers that do not bag and lose their shape like the narrow skimp cut ones.

You will note in the photographs shown here the degree of conservatism that is recognized so smart. The sack suit at the left is in brown worsted, brown being a color that is coming into favor this spring. It is expressed in shoes and gloves and mufflers and sweaters, as well as in suits, and it is sure to be seen in the spring felt hats, which no doubt will show forth in the lighter shades rather than the dark ones.

Masculine Arguments in Favor of the Mode

The four piece suit of rough tweed is becoming universally popular because of its exceeding practicality. A coat, a vest, and long trousers and short ones, make a business suit suitable for golf.

Palm Beach has started the fad for evening striped tops in bathing suits. The trunks are plain navy blue or black.

Very gay beach coats are of flower and figured silk brocade. If you can't indulge in one of silk you can still be in the swim with one of figured crash toweling.

Sport caps in natural camels hair are in loud colors, which are emphasized by the tie.

One of the smartest mufflers seen for some time was of light weight woolen cloth worn in paisy design, very obviously an inspiration from our grandfathers' time. It was in dull red and green colorings with a heavy black monogram outlined with white embroidery in one corner.

For knitted and silk mufflers the cut-out monogram is the smartest. Chamois gloves are smart for spring, while chamois linings to suede gloves are the fad these in-between season days.

Colorful Scotch plaid silk mufflers lend variation to dark blue or Oxford cloth suits. The ends are fringed.

Pajama jackets show patch pockets and roll or fold collars rather than the plain stand up ones.

The neck dress of the sportsman invariably is a semi-soft collar matching the shirt, of striped or figured madras.

The popular "pull-over" sweater is smart if in a color to match the over plaid of one's knickers.

Monograms on sweaters are placed on the left side over the heart. Some of them are very ornate.

Convincing Statements of Madame la Mode

The smartest suits are single-breasted, either fastened with a single button, or linked together or supplied with a waistcoat, with no attempt at fastening.

Bindings of black and white checked flannel are effective on black serge or broadcloth suits. A tiny hat of the checked completes a trig outfit.

A crêpe scarf of some becoming color is capable of performing all sorts of accommodating stunts on afternoon or evening dresses. It may be wrapped about the neck tied in a knot on one shoulder with buds trailing, tied in a bow on one hip, tied about the shoulders as a fichu, tied on the arm.

A lovely white satin brocade evening gown is distinguished by a trimming band of sable fur which crosses from the right shoulder to the left hip, where a rhinestone ornament nestles into it.

For dance frocks that wish particularly to accentuate the youth of the wearer, fluffy chiffons, in high bright colors have a distinctive charm.

Some of the coziest wraps to be worn with sportsclothes are long capes in brushed wool of tan, white or heather mixture.

Some sportscapes are knitted in silk and wool to give the effect of pleats.

Straight Lines Continue Their Popular Sway

This is the time of year when women like to plan, not only their spring clothes, but their summer ones as well, for when the warm weather arrives there is nothing in the world more satisfying than the possession of nice cool things to wear. Of course one's special activities and diversions will necessarily have to be taken into consideration, for frocks suitable at some resorts are quite out of place at others. For instance, at a beach resort, where life in general is informal, elaborate afternoon clothes, or evening clothes—in fact anything very fussy—is entirely out of place. The flower beaded picture hats, the crisp organdie frocks, the lacy parasols, are meant for garden parties, etc. at inland resorts, where also are worn the formal evening frocks at balls, etc. But one type of frock which is worn at every resort, no matter where, is the sport frock. This is a garment typically American, ideally suited to the American woman and her needs. It is a frock so smart and rich in its simplicity, it is raised above the commonplace, and you wear it to the country club, to lunch, strolling on the beach, to the races, to tea and to business. And if the frock is built of the very most elegant of sport fabrics and spells smartness in every line, you could take it dancing with you in the evening to the hotel roof or other public place. As you well know there are sport silks that are more expensive than ordinary silks, and they give an air of exceeding elegance, so naturally the business girl would not choose her sport frock of such, but would select a Golflex model in something practical, like jersey, or tub-silk, or linen.

There are shown here by courtesy of Wilkin & Adler, some smart styles which are splendid examples of the real sport frock that has such a versatile nature. There is no type of frock which the American woman considers more flattering, more swagger, and more generally satisfactory. View for instance the lovely model with the light parasol. Here is a Golflex dress of green sil-u-ette crepe whose excellent tailoring adds to its smart lines. It has the appearance of being a one-piece model, but down the left side of the skirt a group of fine knife pleats is laid, thus achieving a subtle elaboration. The short sleeves are a feature which many of the new frocks exploit, and are distinctive in that they indulge in no trimming of cuffs. The collar, however, employs a modish means of elaboration which is the laying in of narrow folds of white crepe. A small pocket is brought to notice in the same way. A tie and buckle and belt, all of the sil-u-ette crepe, prove the frock's sufficiency unto itself. Now in what prettier fashion would you care to join an assembled group on a country club veranda? Perhaps if you are very slender, you might prefer the plaid flannel frock which is so pleasingly combined with plain white flannel. Cut jet buttons form a really distinctive trimming in connection with a soft white leather belt. The pleats which are set in at each side exemplify the mode's penchant for this sort of thing, it being a very nice way to conciliate with the slender silhouette and the width that is necessary to comfort. Also, as you will know, pleats nicely kept in press are a sure means to richness of effect in any garment.

The business girl, while holding practicality uppermost in her mind, cannot but crave that dainty quality, so dear to every woman's heart, in the clothes she wears. But not always is it possible to introduce it with such genuineness as may here be seen in the Golflex jersey dress with collar and cuffs of linen and frill of finely pleated batiste. The frill is in three sections, and protrudes from a deep opening in the front of the frock. Pockets which are noticeable because of their flaps which button down, are a nifty attribute, while the cuffs, shaped to points which are buttoned together, are worthy details. This frock is in poudré blue.

The other frock in the photograph is distinguished by a hand made cuff and collar set of batiste, but the other worthwhile attributes are the two pockets placed in a way to balance the frock, with one on the left side of the bodice, and the other on the right side of the skirt. It is a Golflex dress of blue and white tub silk.

Reflections on Practical Clothes

Some of the bathing suits introduced at Palm Beach were of alpaca and featured an embroidered monogram or a fish on the front.

Bath capes were of plain toweling bordered and collared with gay chintz.

The strictly tailored suit is the smartest this spring, either buttoned or linked together, with either a shawl collar, or mannish lapels.

Fur for spring coats is dyed to match the color of the fabric. Green fur on a green coat, red on red, and yellow on brown. The effect is very unusual and strictly "springy."

...

The little and medium sized handkerchiefs have given way to yard square chiffon or thin silk affairs gayly printed. They drip languidly from pockets on dresses and suits and blouses.

Flat Trimmings Are Dominant For Large and Small Hats

It is indeed difficult to lay down any hard and fast rules in millinery, for age, features, form and coloring, all must be considered by the individual, and so Dame Fashion is wise enough to offer great latitude in styles. Judging by the number of women who have adopted the close fitting cloche, one would not think this were true, and the marvel of it is that so many to whom this style is utterly unbecoming, should wear it. A woman of middle age for instance can surely gain nothing in youthfulness by a turned down brim. On the contrary, a roll or turn back brim is flattering. And there are such models to choose from in any season. Several adorable models from M. Ufland & Co. are pictured here, one which could suitably complete a trig spring suit, and the other to be worn with summer sport attire. The former is of black satin appliqued with white hemp braid in a beautiful design. The penchant for the black and white combination being very strong in spring suits and frocks is necessarily felt in hats, and the black hat faced with white, or with brim massed with white edging the brim. The other small shape in the photograph is of novelty imported French hand crochéd visca braid in black and white, with ribbons of black and white formed into a cocarde at the side. The most fascinating feature of this hat is its collapsible crown which is so pliable as to fit any size head. Ribbon crochéd in this same manner would be very pretty for a crown, while the brim could be of moiré or taffeta silk. Moiré is a strong factor in millinery, but, as with all other silk hats, braid is plentifully combined. Ciré ribbon also expresses the trend of the mode, and entire little cloches of it swathed and draped of a wide width, or in narrow widths pasted flat, with only a rhinestone or pearl ornament for trimming achieve a very chic effect.

Sectional crowns are by far the most favored type, causing the hat to fit snugly the head. In straw shapes the crown follows the general form, the square crown being quite positively out of the picture.

Medium large hats are worn for dressy occasions, in black and brown, with oftentimes a soft draping of lace which is sure to lend that inimitable grace which is the chief charm of lace. A beautiful model is shown in the photograph, the body portion being in two tones of wood brown hair braid in a fancy weave. A luscious brown lace swathes the brim, dropping over its edge, and at the side trailing long ends. A tangerine colored georgette facing gleams through it and flowers in the same shade nestle at the side of the crown.

Another wide-brimmed hat for summer wear gives importance to a sash of finely pleated crepe which drops its languorous ends over the right shoulder. It is in orchid color to match the color of the Swiss lace straw of the hat, while a deeper violet crepe serves as a binding on the edge of the brim, and a band across the ends of the sash.

The manner of binding the brim is a very popular conceit, affording an excellent opportunity for the delightful contrast of soft silk or crepe or velvet against the crisp straw. And the contrast of colors is also a feature, for it is helpful as a trimming quality. Yellow binding on black hats is one of the up to the minute combinations, while for light straw hats such exquisite colors as rose and violet, green with sapphire blue, yellow with dull blue or violet, and green with orange, are all seen. Sometimes the crown of a hat will be straw of one color, while its brim will choose to be of taffeta or georgette in another color.

You must not sit in front of a mirror . . . . . to get fitted to a hat. Stand before a full length mirror so as to suit your hat not

For Spring 1924

The silhouette is long, straight, snaky. No hips, no bust, no draperies—but distinctly new, for all that. And the newness consists in the clever handling of frills, pleatings, tunics, buttons—yes, buttons straight down the front, or straight down the back of the beltless gown, in such a manner as to unmistakably suggest that the quaint fashions of mid-Victorian days have finally been resurrected.

—and here in profusion, are those variations of the new Footwear modes which perfectly accentuate the season's silhouette, assuring you that wonderful satisfaction and pleasure that you derive from a perfectly assembled costume.

Random Notes on Summer Millinery Conceits

Very smart little ornaments are being placed at the base of the crown on the front or side of ribbon hats. They are often of rhinestones or marcasite. But a very novel one was of red sealing wax which was monogrammed on the inch-wide moiré ribbon band.

Parasols are ever opening up with new caprices. The latest ones are huge imitations of flowers, formed of crepe de chine or georgette. The sun-flower of many yellow crepe petals with brown crepe for the center makes a lovely one for wear with the modish yellow frocks or white ones trimmed with yellow.

Another beautiful parasol incorporating the smart yellow touch was in the form of a huge white daisy with yellow crepe for a center.

Simplicity Is the Keynote of Best Modern Decoration

Let no woman delude herself into thinking that window hangings may be carelessly chosen from any inviting bargain counter. The window plays a far more important role than that of mere ventilator and light opening. It is one of the most important decorative factors in any room, and its correct treatment is an art, though one which, happily, even the amateur decorator can now aspire to, thanks to the modern mode of the best window dressing.

Simplicity is the new mode, a simplicity achieved by the use of light, transparent fabrics, simply draped.

There was a time when every well-furnished home boasted its stiff and heavy English Nottingham lace curtains, or Swiss lace curtains, with elaborate patterns executed in tape, applied in lovers' knots and dreadful rosettes which closely resembled miniature life preservers. The stiffer these curtains were, the handsomer they were considered.

It had apparently never, at that time, occurred to those who set the fashions in interior decorations, that the window is just the frame for a picture outside, and that what we hang over it should be merely a veil which we place between ourselves and the outdoors, something to insure us privacy without shutting off the picture outside. The veiling must be transparent, and it also must be flattering, just as the veil which a clever woman chooses to put over her face will be flattering. It should veil the window in a restful manner, softly diffusing the light which comes in. Therefore it must not be a dead white.

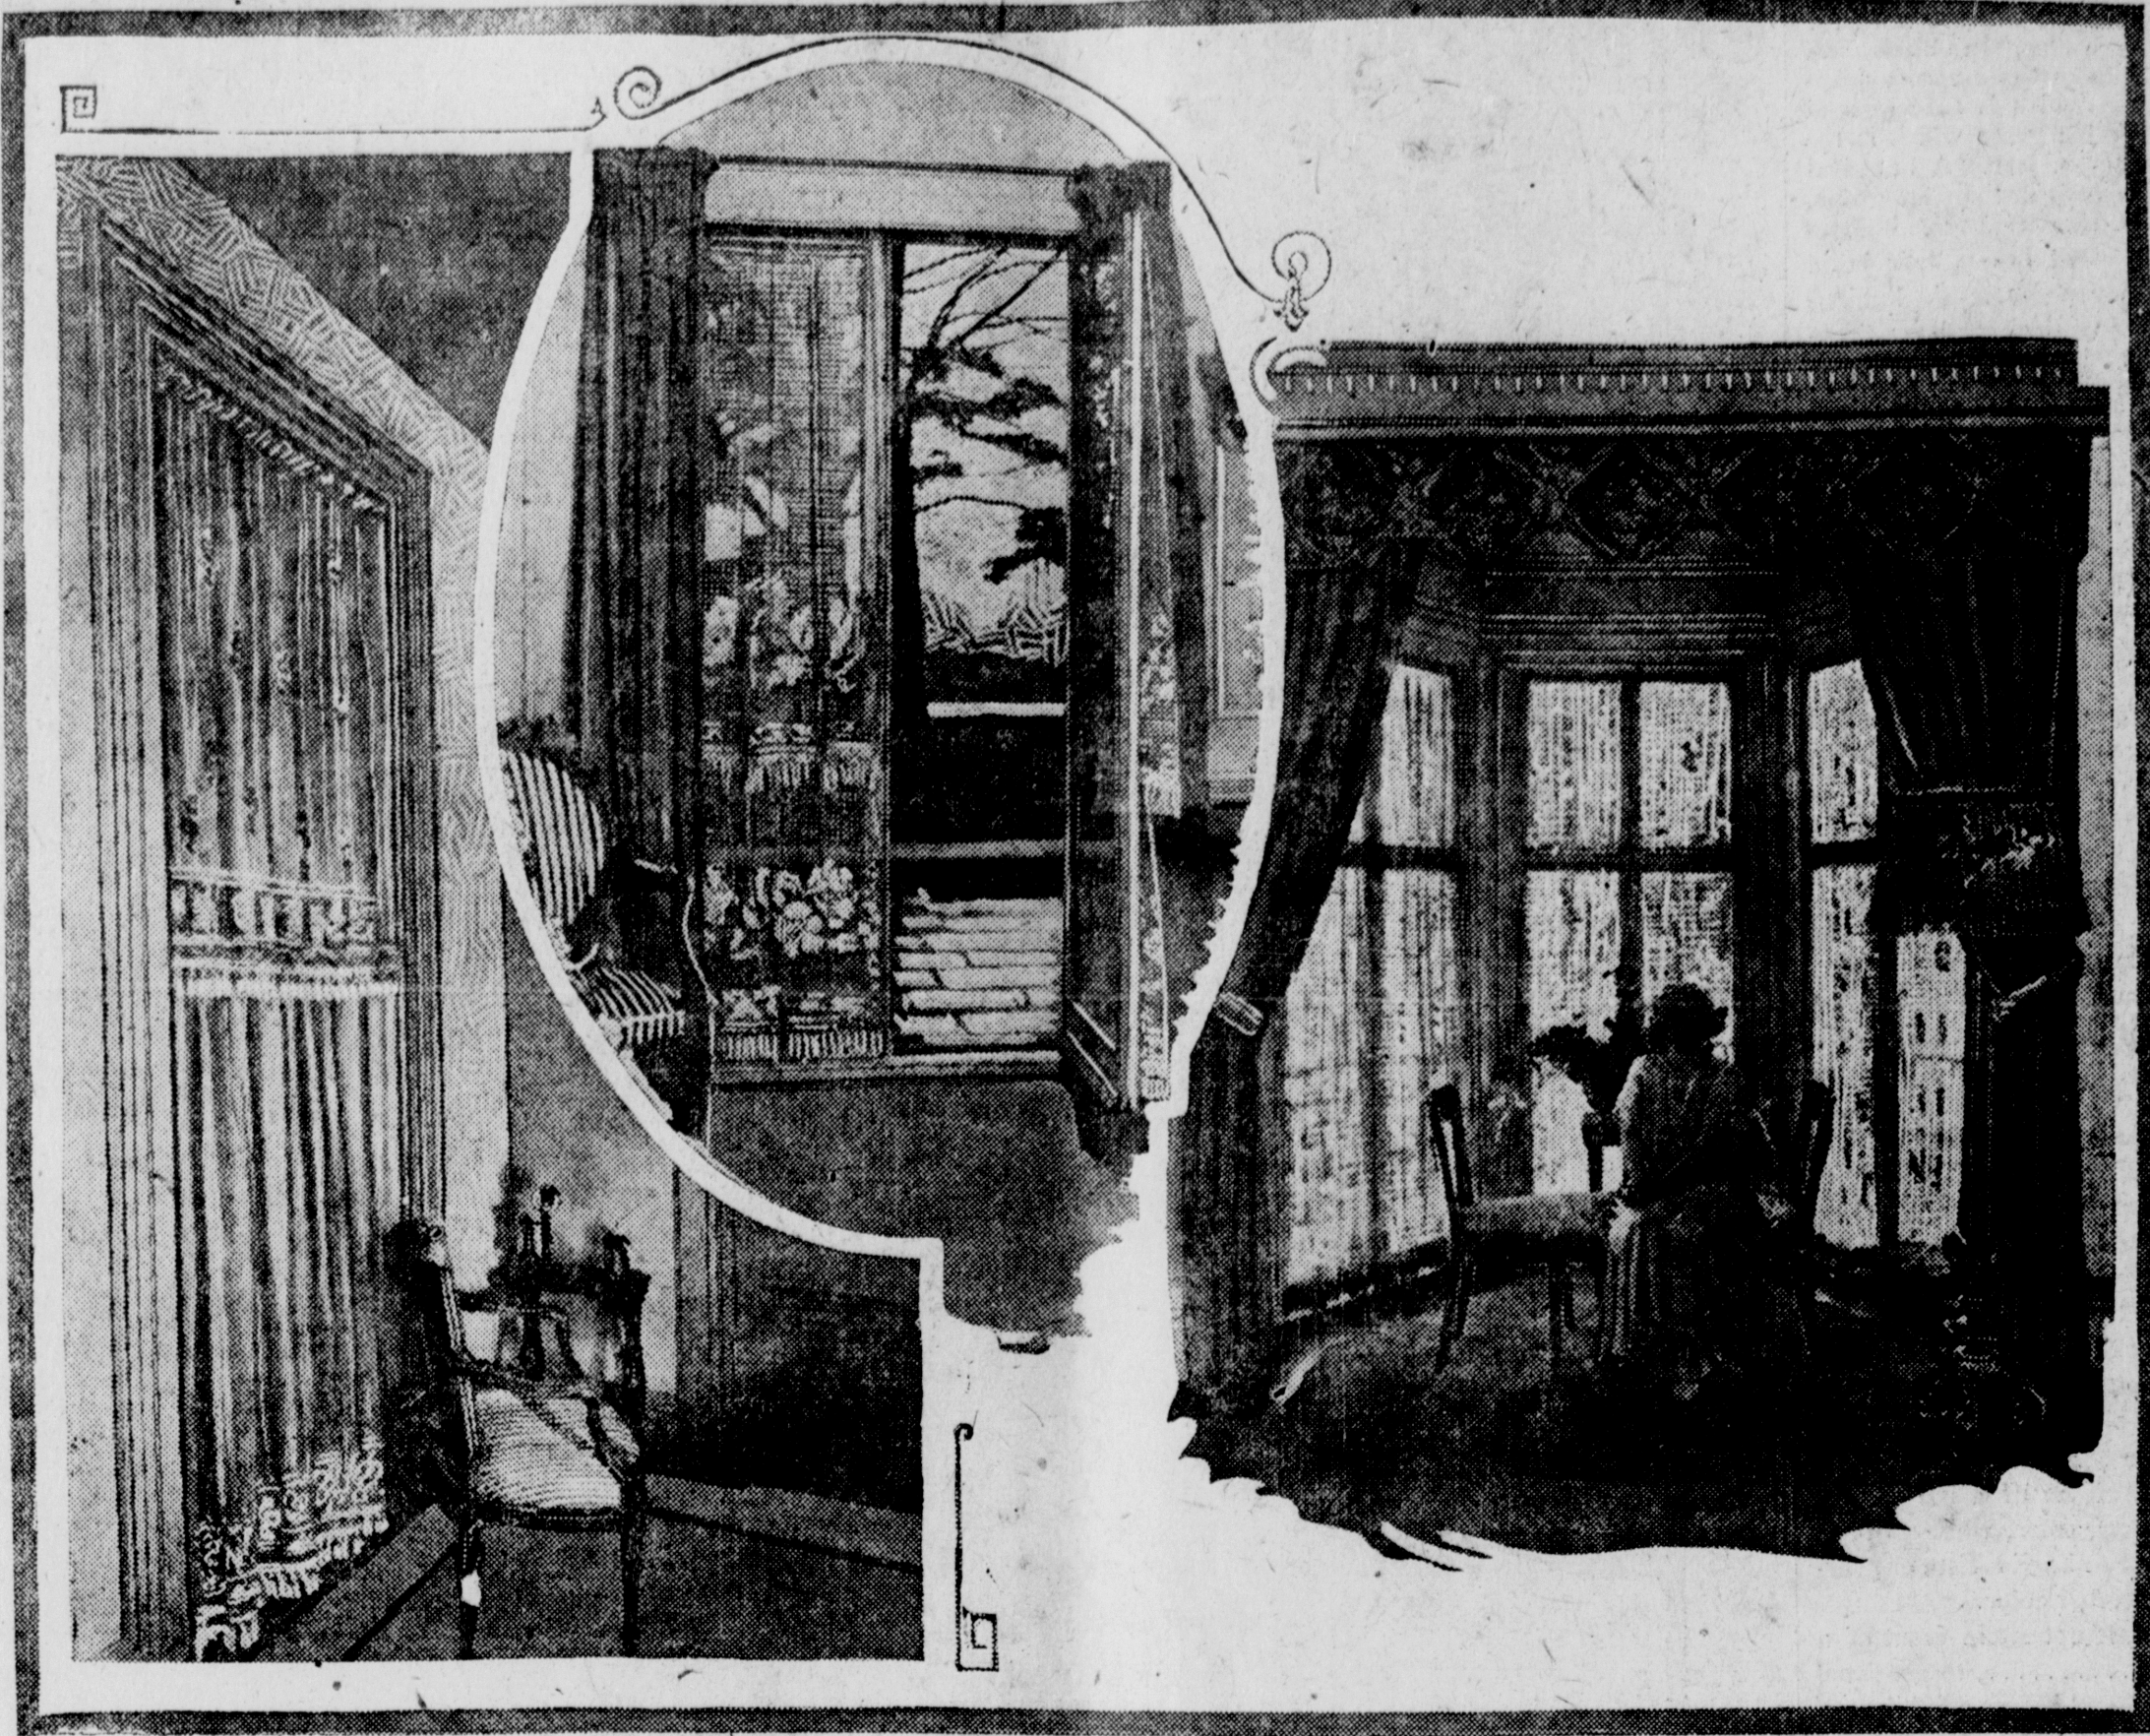

Many a woman never stops to think of that important matter, the outward appearance of her house, when she sets forth to buy curtains. She buys heavy ecru lace for the parlor, yellow silk for the front hall, cream marquisette for the dining room, pink organdie for Bessie's bedroom, stenciled unbleached muslin for Bobby's nice, boyish room, and white dotted Swiss for her own. Each room looks very pretty, but oh, my countrymen, think of the outside of that house! A circus poster is no more garish.

Today, the best decorators, who plan each separate room in relation to the whole house, are using what they call "glass curtains" at every window in the house. A glass curtain is simply a very thin, transparent curtain, usually of net, which is hung next to the pane, to secure privacy for those inside, and also to diffuse the light more agreeably than when it shines directly through the bare glass. Then, over the glass curtain, any color and material may be used for side curtains and top valances. Use orange silk gauze in the parlor, blue repp in the dining room, and purple cretonne with green parrots in another room, but the outside of the house will still present a dignified and harmonious appearance.

The smartest and at the same time most beautiful material for glass curtains is undoubtedly net, which is transparent, dainty, and airy, permits light and air to enter freely, and gives a "dressy" finish to any window. Indeed, with a lovely net curtain at the window, overdraperies may be entirely omitted without sacrificing either beauty or correct decoration.

There are many kinds and weights of net on the market today, as well as different meshes and color tones, ranging from cream to deep copper. Cream, or some of the restful tones of ecru, sunshine, and gold, are correct. Use the same tone at all the windows of the house, even though you use a different quality in different rooms.

What The Well-Dressed Window Is Wearing This Spring

legs of chairs and tables serve the purpose.

The newest thing in summer furniture covers is lacquered or glazed chintz. It is very dressy-looking and is used all the year around for furniture covering in boudoirs. It is excellent for its intended purpose of keeping the dust from the fabric of the furniture in summer, for dust cannot easily penetrate it.

Save your old clothes and tear in strips for hooked rugs. These old-fashioned articles of floor coverings are the rage, and vie with the craze for antique furniture.

Two or even three sets of rods or bars must be used if more than one set of curtains is hung. The glass curtain requires one rod. The side curtains need another. And if the top valance is to cover the entire width of the window, it must have a rod of its own, or be fastened to a valance board invisibly placed above the window frame.

Wool embroidered scarfs and shawls, the scarf usually of crepe or wool, are omnipresent.

Suits of broadcloth are very smart for spring. Many are in black with white pipings, and a blouse either of printed silk or a tailored one of white with a gay colored tie.

Lingerie blouses made of real laces and embroidered net or fine batiste, worn over flesh pink or white satin camisoles, are pretty for dressy afternoon wear.

White is so popular at Palm Beach this spring, that it is almost a uniform.

Will Silk Broadcloth Frocks Be Popular This Year

The woman who takes pleasure in the practice of economy if she can do so with style, and in company with Madame la Mode, will be delighted with the new tub silks which have been introduced this year. Now if you are conjuring up a fabric anything like the thin supple silk which was once known as tub silk, you are all wrong, for this new silk is rich and substantial, and appropriately called "silk broadcloth."

But it comes in the dainty pencil stripes and fine checks, and beautiful pastel colorings so dear to the heart of all of us; light blue with a fine line of dark blue and next it one of soft yellow; grey with a black line and next it one of orange; violet with a purple line and next it one of dull blue, and so on down a list of the most delectable concoctions. For country club wear frocks made of this silk are just the thing for morning, several having been seen at Palm Beach, and a few especially pretty models from Monroe Froehlich are photographed here. The first one is of white darbrook silk broadcloth striped in navy. It has a roll collar that starts low enough to prove particularly becoming to the stout figure. The collar and cuffs are of white satin as is also the pocket top. A belt is worn with this model, but if you are one of those who have fallen under the spell of the beltless frock you will like the next model which has a boyish air, its shirt front and collar outlined with bands of plain silk, and a small tie and tiny buttons to add to the general effect. Two pockets to thrust each hand in are conveniently placed.

The monogram, so popular a year ago, has lost none of its popularity, but has become a bit more intriguing. We see it in forms scarcely recognizable, and on meeting a friend with a bold something inscribed in a circle or diamond or square on the front or side of her blouse, we vainly try to decipher it, and decide she must have taken up Chinese as her latest pursuit in languages. The model pictured here, with a monogram, is a lovely slenderizing frock of poudre blue society satin, with buttons and slash pocket to aid in the decoration, while the soft bow and the long ends of a narrow sash serve an elaboration to the skirt. Such a frock as this is just the type you can choose with safety to take away with you on a vacation trip.

Morning frocks of cotton and linen will find their way about this summer of course, as usual, for there are some women who feel that nothing is quite so nice as linen, hand embroidered or elaborated with drawn work, and such frocks do indeed breathe an atmosphere of refined elegance. But unless one has both time and genius to put on them, such frocks are a strain on the purse.

Last year printed silks became popular for morning wear, and the manufacturers of this type of silk took their cue and have turned out some really lovely designs for this sort of wear, just typically morningified, much on the order of the chintz patterns and English prints. Frocks of them are made perfectly plain, beltless and with perhaps a pocket or two, and perhaps a flat pleated flounce at the bottom, while the neck and very short sleeves are bound with vivid ribbon.

Sport skirts are mostly pleated, and will be worn with short sleeved silk or flannel blouses in pastel colorings, as well as sweaters. But on the whole sweaters will take a decline. The knitted frock however, is still strongly in favor, and so long as women find it to keep its shape, they will be true to it, but it is really only the substantial weaves that are able to do this, and while they are splendid for the mountains, they are a bit too warm elsewhere in the summer.

Intimate Robes are Prettiest in Silk

The negligee is becoming more and more favored by women of all classes, not because the opportunities for wearing it are greater, but because women have come to know its restful charm and take advantage of the opportunities for wearing it.

The woman of leisure will don her negligee in the morning, and if it is elaborate enough, will wear it for breakfast, especially if this early meal is served in her boudoir. She will lounge about in it until she starts out on her morning shopping tour, enjoying the luxury of it to the fullest. After a day full of gadding, she will return home, and casting off her formal attire, snatch a half hour or so of rest, snuggled in her negligee in the happy seclusion of her boudoir. And this too is what the business woman has learned to do. She has awakened to the fact that many so-called women of leisure spend no more time at home during the day than they do, and that a negligee is tremendously restful returning home, especially if an evening engagement ensues.

Now, what your negligee will be made of, and in what style, is largely a matter of choice, but something silken is the most pleasing and pretty. It might be that you would like crepe de chine, a fabric which is especially adaptable for hand embroidery, that delightfully economical method of elaboration if one knows how to do it. And, forsooth, who does not, for the popular needlework of today includes the elementary stitches that we were taught in the kindergarten, and are so simple we could never forget.

In one of these photographs is shown a pretty negligee employing hand embroidery done in an all-over pattern, with sprays of tiny rosebuds sprinkled over the entire surface. They may be done with French knots or the regular stitch. They are done in rose colors on a pale blue crepe de chine, with rose crepe de chine used as a long shawl collar that finishes in a scarf end with a languorous tassel dripping from it. The rose crepe finishes the wide sleeves as a double fold, and another one, set back always adds a decorative quality. The buckle is bound with soutache braid in rose colors.

Did you know that marabou was returning to favor as trimming for evening gowns and negligees? As in evidence, view this pretty model in the photograph. While the marabou looks dark, it is really yellow, and it is combined here with a novelty fabric having a yellow foundation deliciously embossed with violet velvet. The effect is delightful, for the downy substance of the marabou is particularly becoming, and so dainty that it is essentially appropriate for such use.

Another especially pretty trimming for negligees is lace, and those who can ignore the practical, should choose the combination of chiffon and lace. Quantities of each will be necessary for one negligee for never is a transparent fabric used in single thickness, that is, it is over-draped in some fashion, not always following the trend of the line underneath, and not always being in the same color. When finished it is quite opaque. The lace may be wide banding or flouncing attached to portions which are made so long as to achieve an irregular line at the bottom, or actually trail the floor. In conjunction with it ribbon is usually used to add that indefinable touch of finesse. Its crisp, fresh, dressy atmosphere can be supplied by no other means. The Ladyfair double faced ribbon, showing contrasting colors on each side is fascinating for applied bow-knots on lace-groundwork.

A more practical negligee is shown here, with narrow lace employed to give a dainty effect to a heavy shell pink crepe de chine garment. The very wide sleeves are luxurious, and enhanced not only by the many rows of lace but by a line of hand hem-stitching at the drop shoulder line. A cluster of pink and white ribbon flowers finishes the long collar and holds a slight draping.

A real lounging robe in which you might be permitted to roam beyond the confines of your boudoir is pictured on the other model. Here you see no furbeloes, but a relaxed conservatism and richness. Lustre care silk forms the foundation, being a novelty fabric that has a subtle decorative quality of its own. In delightful contrast to it is the plain satin employed as facings which are turned back to add a trimming touch. Facings of bright blue on grey silk is a very pretty combination.

Silk is a Practical Fabric for Kiddies as well as for Grown-ups

When a kiddie is anywhere from four to half past supper time, here necessities of wardrobe cannot be well over-looked. If she does not get what she should, she is very likely to let her guardians know about it, for these are progressive times and youngsters are good mimics. Did you know that quite the latest whim of Dame Fashion waited their way, is lingerie of silk, with dainty trimmings of lace or hand embroidery just like their mothers? Yes, it looks as if it were going to cost as much to clothe a kiddie as it does her mother, for these exquisitely made undergarments embody real lace, and the hand embroidery and sewing is of the finest. But what most mothers are more concerned with is smart frocks and thin—her little daughter demands in order to appear as well as other little girls and so convey to the world her mother's excellent taste and refinement. For her kiddie's clothes are as expressive of such attributes as her manners.

Kiddie clothes always follow along the lines of grown-ups fashions, and therefore are sometimes failures in the way of pleasing effect and becomingness, for to reduce adult styles to childish insouciance, and adapt them to childish forms and faces, requires somewhat of genius.

The elongated waistlines which we have been wearing has been adopted on kiddie frocks with an effect like what we used to term the "French waist," only the belt is not so tight—it is looser like the adults are. And another difference in these up to the minute frocks is that a pair of knickers, either of the same material with which it is trimmed, or of some other material that harmonizes with it, always accompanies the modish kiddie frock. For indeed the smart frocks are very abbreviated, and to supplement them in this way is about the only course to modesty. A charming example of such a frock is shown in the photograph where a batik printed silk forms the tunic, or frock portion, which is in a mingling of tan and dull blue and brown. Knickers of brown silk complete it, with bindings of dull blue on the edge. Dull blue silk also binds the neck and ties in a bow at the left side. Two other small bows of it trim that same side of the frock, and a cording of it serves as a childish apology for a belt. These long waisted styles are very graceful on youngsters, and are as pretty in summer materials as are the silken or woolen ones of spring. In fact many kiddies wear wash fabrics all through the year.
